State Assessment Drops 7.9%, While County Drops 9.8

1933 Arkansas Valuation Falls to 435 Million Dollars

HEMPSTEAD IS SIX

Declines From 6 1/2 in 1932 to 6 Millions, for Present Taxes

LITTLE ROCK.—The total assessed valuation of real and personal property in Arkansas for 1933, upon which taxes are being collected this year, is $434,913,419, compared to $471,469,866 for 1932. The Arkansas Corporation Commission reported Thursday, after completing a compilation of records, submitted by the county clerks.

The decline for the state was 7.9 per cent. The decline in Hempstead county was 9.8.

The total personal valuation in 1933 was $119,069,636, compared to $140,654,013 for 1932 and the real estate valuation last year was $315,843,783 compared to $330,815,858 for 1932.

The assessors' valuations for 1933 were $45,784,315, and for 1932 were $50,157,723.

Pulaski had the largest similar valuation of any county, with $64,943,851 for 1933, a decline from $66,429,333 the preceding year.

Stone county had the lowest total valuation, $904,346 compared with $1,055,635 for 1932.

Eight counties had a valuation of more than $10,000,000. In 1932 Benton county had a valuation of $10,154,877, but this year dropped to $9,874,328.

Counties with valuation of more than $10,000,000 were Garland, Jefferson, Mississippi, Cleveland, Sebastian, Union, Washington and Pulaski.

One of the greatest decreases in value was in Union county—from $20,040,005 in 1932 to $14,567,525 in 1933.

Saturday Closes Gin Certificates

Last Chance for Farmers to Apply to Local Committeemen

According to Frank R. Stanley, county agent of Hempstead, farmers who have not completed applications for cotton gin tax free by Saturday will have to pay tax on all cotton ginned.

An effort is being made by the county agent to complete this work at once. A few unconcerned individuals may delay the certificates for the entire county.

All producers whose farms have been measured should get Performance Certificates completed at once. No checks for the second half of the rental payment will be received until all measuring papers are in.

Each producer is urged to see his commitment immediately to avoid further delay in receiving checks.

Stores Will Open at 7:30 Monday

Half-Hour Later Opening Time Voted by the Majority

The majority of Hope's dry goods stores which have been opening at 7 o'clock in the morning during the spring and summer months will cut their store-open time by half an hour daily beginning Monday, August 20, it was announced Friday.

They will open at 7:30 instead of 7.

Workman Killed by Asphalt Truck

Truck Backs Over Him on Highway Near Hamburg, Causing Death

HAMBURG, Ark.—(AP)—Daniel A. White, 60, died in a Moultrie hospital Friday after being run over and crushed by a truck loaded with asphalt.

The accident occurred as White was standing on the highway with a group of workmen. He was struck as the truck backed over him.

Mattie Evans Leaves Saturday on Hollywood Prize Excursion

Accompanied to Little Rock by Manager Swanke and Family, Heading for Wisconsin Vacation

Miss Mattie Evans

Miss Mattie Evans, winner of the Saenger theater's all-expense trip to Hollywood, leaves for the first stop on the trip, Little Rock, Saturday with Manager Arthur Swanke.

Miss Evans in Little Rock will meet and dine with the 13 other winners and at 11 p. m. she will appear at the Rialto theater after which the 13 winners will entrain for El Paso, Texas, the second stop.

Going with Miss Evans as far as Little Rock not only will be the Saenger manager, but his entire family with him vacation for eight days in Milwaukee with his parents. Manager Swanke also plans on spending a day in Little Rock.

Miss Evans was born, and which he has not visited during the past 30 years. On the return a day or two will be spent visiting friends in Chicago and the Century of Progress.

In his absence the Saenger will be managed by W. C. Smith, of Jackson, Tenn.

Miss Evans and party will arrive in Hollywood sometime Monday and she promises to tell, from the Saenger stage upon her return, the highlights of the trip.

But before her return, the Saenger promises to show in the Paramount News reel, special scenes of the Malco party's arrival in the motion picture capital. These scenes, according to home office reports, should arrive in Hope the latter part of next week.

Official Canvass of County Friday

Final Tabulation for Each Box to Appear in Tomorrow's Star

Absentee votes were being counted at Hope city hall Friday and the official canvass of Hempstead county's ballots in the Democratic primary election last Tuesday was expected to be completed late this afternoon.

The official canvass will be published in tomorrow's Star, with final returns on every box in the county for all races.

There was considerable amusement in Hope with the arrival of Friday morning's Arkansas Gazette which apparently showed a startling upset in the attorney general's race in Hempstead county. The Gazette tabulation for all 75 counties gave for Hempstead:

Norwood 3,124; Bailey 2,308.

But it was a typographical error on figures previously supplied by The Star to the Associated Press, of which both the Gazette and Star are members.

On 37 out of 38 precincts the correct Hempstead county vote for attorney general is:

Norwood 769; Bailey 2,387.

Phillips County Contest

HELENA, Ark.—(AP)—Carl E. Bailey filed a court action here late Friday contesting the vote for attorney general in Phillips county, charging illegal votes and illegal conduct of the election in certain precincts. Phillips county went for Hal Norwood 2,287, to 1,442 for Bailey.

Bailey maintains lead

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—With a lead of approximately 12,000 on nearly complete unofficial tabulations, Carl Bailey was maintaining this or better as the official canvass of counties began trickling into Little Rock Friday.

$1 for 90 Cents No Bargain in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Advertisement picture dealing with treasure, Lionel Brashares was employed to go about Memphis streets selling good silver dollars for 90 cents each.

After two hours of real effort, he succeeded in selling 20 to a suspicious public. No women accepted the offer.

"How come it has this 'E Pluribus Unum' on it?" he asked. Explanations awaited nothing and Brashares returned the 90 cents.

Farley Hints at Promotion of Joe Robinson to Court

Speaks Freely, Not Definitely, on Little Rock Visit

PRaise for Couch

"Robinson Undoubtedly Will Be Promoted," Says Postmaster

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Postmaster General James A. Farley told newspaper men Friday that although he had not discussed with President Roosevelt the matter of a successor to Harvey C. Couch, who had resigned as a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation "he should be a Southern Democrat and undoubtedly will be."

The postmaster general praised highly the services of United States Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas and of Mr. Couch as aides to the administration.

As to rumors that Senator Robinson would be appointed to the United States Supreme Court Mr. Farley would not commit himself but declared Arkansas' senior senator deserves any promotion within the gift of the Democratic party.

"He undoubtedly will be raised to a higher office whenever a vacancy occurs," Mr. Farley said.

Couch Quits R. F. C.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Telling the president that he felt business definitely is on the upswing, Harvey C. Couch of Arkansas, Thursday resigned from the RFC to return to private business in the Southwest.

President Roosevelt accepted the resignation effective September 1.

Couch was nominated for the RFC board by President Hoover in January of 1932, and confirmed after bitter criticism by Senator Blaine, Republican Wisconsin, for his record as a utilities and a railroad man.

In his letter of resignation Couch said:

"With the feeling that your leadership and the efforts of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as well as other agencies set up to conquer the depression, wish to return to my own business in the great Southwest."

Therefore, with your permission, I tender my resignation as a director of the above corporation to become effective not later than August 31, 1934."

The president replied:

"My dear Harvey: "Appreciating fully your reasons for submitting your resignation as director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, I am reluctantly accepting it as of September 1."

"I want you to know first, I appreciate very much your willingness to hold up your resignation submitted June 26 until after my return to Washington, and second the fine and loyal service rendered."

"I want to have the opportunity of a little talk with you in the next few days."

Man Run Over and Killed by Own Car

Engineer Standing in Front When Truck Strikes His Machine

GURDON, Ark.—(AP)—Robert Cone, 35, public works construction engineer, was fatally injured near here Friday when run over by his own automobile as it was hit from the rear by a truck.

Cone, repairing his car, was standing in front of it. The impact of the truck collision drove his own machine over his body and died on the way to a hospital.

The truck driver's name was not learned but Coroner Collins said the accident was unavoidable.

Dr. Keller Speaks to Rotary Friday

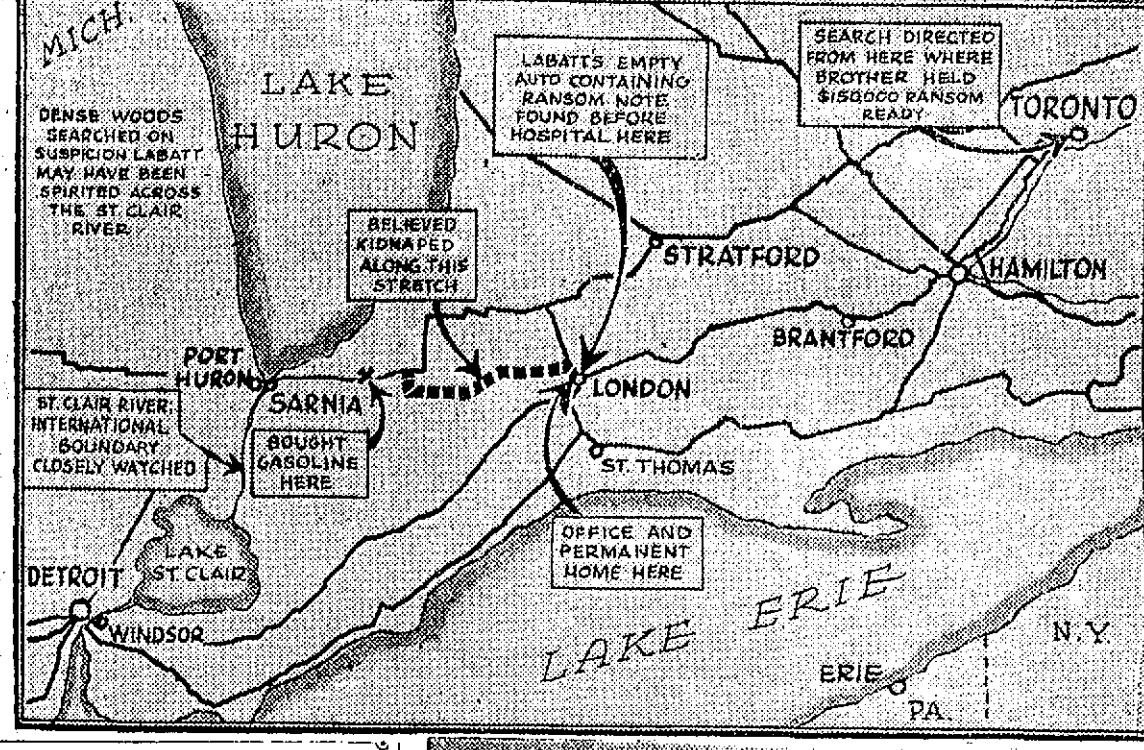

Night Meeting of Club—Speaker at Bible Class Sunday

Hope Rotarians were scheduled to meet for a 7:15 o'clock dinner at Hotel Barlow Friday night to receive the official visit of the Arkansas district governor of Rotary International, Dr. Fred Keller of Jonesboro.

Dr. Keller is the guest here of E. F. McFaddin, past Arkansas district governor. The visitor is superintendent of Jonesboro schools and an outstanding layman in the Christian church at Jonesboro.

Dr. Keller is remaining in Hope over the week end to address the Men's Bible class of First Methodist church at 9:45 o'clock Sunday morning.

Where Canadian Police Won

Textile Strike Is Believed Averted

McMahon Re-Elected by United Textile Workers of America

NEW YORK.—(P)—Conservatives Friday re-elected Thomas F. McMahon as president of the United Textile Workers of America—a move interpreted by Francis J. Gorman, unanimously re-elected first vice-president, as meaning that there may not be a general strike of cotton textile workers.

The convention Thursday ordered the union's executive council to call a general strike on or before September 1.

The re-election of McMahon, however, was a surprise development as the insurgents threw their support to him after conference.

The strike resolution was approved by all but 10 of the 571 delegates. The strike vote applied only to workers in the cotton textile industry. The status of affiliated unions, such as those in the silk, rayon and woolen-worsted fields, will be discussed Friday or Saturday.

The executive council, yet to be elected, will meet Saturday at the close of the convention, but the date of the strike will be kept secret and employers given no more than 12 hours notice.

The vote on the strike was taken after hours of warm argument, most of it favoring a strike, and amid intense excitement. It was taken, too, after President McMahon had admitted in answer to a question that the organization had no money to finance local unions through the siege.

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, was one of those who urged the textile workers to "fight for justice."

Prisoners Strike in New York Jail

But Commissioner Stands Firm and Hunger Strike Is Ended

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Insubordination broke out anew Thursday in the Welfare Island prison, scene of Commissioner Austin J. McCormack's sensational raids last February, and the institution was placed in a state of siege.

Disorder spread over the East River prison soon after breakfast when a "grapevine" rumor raced around the cell blocks that inmates were entitled to 10 days remission of sentence per month for good behavior.

Discussion of the rumor swept about the breakfast table. Then the prisoners decided to "strike." They refused to leave their cell blocks for routine work.

Commissioner McCormack—whose raids disclosed scandalous conditions in the prison, widespread favoritism Welfare Island, remained on duty from 7:30 a. m. throughout the day, went among the cell blocks explaining that the rumor was without foundation and that no such remission was allowable under the law.

Many convicts continued their screaming in cells, banging on walls and booing guards.

All were locked in their cells through out the day and the situation Thursday night had quieted considerably. In fact, so much so that the extra guard was taken off duty.

As a result of the revolt, the entire population of prisoners went without lunch, but Commissioner McCormack said Thursday night that the convicts had agreed to go to their routine jobs Friday.

After the agreement, he said, dinner was served.

TOP—This map shows the area in which the hunt centered for the kidnapers of John S. Labatt after the wealthy brewer's automobile was found abandoned in London, Ont., a $150,000 ransom demand note fastened to the steering wheel. The distance by highway from Detroit, lower left, to Toronto, upper right, is 245 miles.

BOTTOM—With $150,000 demanded for his release, John S. Labatt, above, wealthy London, Ont., brewer, was rescued in Canada's first ransom kidnapping. The ransom note was found attached to the steering wheel of his car, from which he was seized by the abductors somewhere in the 60 miles between his summer home at Sarnia Beach and his London office.

Evangelist Gone, Ransom Is Asked

Minister, 28, Disappears—Wife, 50, Gets $25,000 Demand

GOLDSBORO, N. C.—(P)—Mrs. H. H. Aske reported Friday that she had received a second communication from the presumed kidnapers of her husband, the "Four-Square Gospel" Evangelist, who has been missing since Tuesday.

A note from Washington was said to have informed her to have $25,000 ready by Saturday.

The first note advised her of the kidnapping and said instruction would follow.

Has Little Property

GOLDSBORO, N. C.—(P)—The Rev. R. H. Aske, 28, an evangelist, has been missing from his home here for two days and his wife said Thursday she had received a note telling her to "get $25,000 if she hoped to see him alive again."

The evangelist who has been preaching what he terms the "Four-Square Gospel" in a tent here for several months, failed to return from a trip to Smithfield 25 miles west of here Wednesday night.

John S. Labatt, Unharmful, Returns to His Family Again

RANSOM IS DENIED

Family Sought to Pay, But Police Prevented Criminal Contact

PL—Lead Kidnaping—His Captors

TORONTO, Canada.—(P)—John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer, returned home to London, Ontario, Friday after 65 hours in the hands of kidnapers. Ransom of $150,000 that had been demanded by the kidnapers was not paid, and the abductors released their victim just as Canadian police, including the famous Royal Mounted, moved in with British tenacity to get their man.

Labatt was unharmful but in a highly nervous state which required him to go to bed. Police surrounded the Labatt home as he was united with his family. Labatt suffers from a heart ailment.

His brother Hugh had drawn money from a bank in an effort to meet the ransom demands and pleaded with police to give him a chance to pay, but the police drew a ring around his hotel here with a cordon of officers and stood between the frantic family and the criminals.

Farmhouse Suspect

TORONTO, Canada.—(P)—A Toronto police officer said Thursday night that John S. Labatt, kidnapped London (Ont.) brewer, was believed to be held by his abductors in a farmhouse in western Ontario.

Although he did not reveal the source of his information, the officer said the Labatt family had made two contacts with the kidnapers through Hugh Labatt, a brother, while he was in Toronto.

The whole investigation took a new turn late Thursday when it was learned that John Labatt had been absent from the hotel room here where he had been conducting telephone negotiations, presumably with the kidnapers, on a secret mission since early Thursday.

Further revelations disclosed the discovery of witnesses to the kidnapping of the wealthy brewer, near Sarnia the family's summer home.

The Toronto officer said the farmhouse where the kidnapped victim was believed held was rented especially for the purpose by a group of gangsters, being taken over some time ago.

Farm's Cautious

Indicating that negotiations with the Labatt family had not been completed, the officer said the family was demanding concrete evidence from the kidnapers that they held John Labatt alive.

The investigation would be taken until the evidence is forthcoming.

The investigation near Sarnia disclosed several farmers and residents who said they had identified the automobile of John Labatt on the morning of the kidnapping.

One Jack Burnley, who lives on a side road east of Camlachie, said he saw a black automobile proceeding east on the Edgemont road about 10 Tuesday morning.

As they approached the Wyoming road, he said, another car came out of a side road and darted ahead of the other two. He positively identified one of the machines as Labatt's.

Others, including D. Jackson, station agent at Camlachie, Arlie Dewar and Willard Anderson, farmers, said three or four men stepped from two automobiles on the Edgemont road and pushed into the machine, which drove away.

Their story upset a theory Labatt had been kidnapped while driving on the Sarnia-London highway.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Sense of Smell is Linked Closely with That of Memory

In the lower animals the sense of smell is so important that it dominates most of their activities. By the sense of smell animals find their foods and determine its qualities and recognize their enemies or friends.

In human beings the sense of sight dominates by far the sense of smell, so that even when the sense of smell is lost, life is not greatly affected, yet it makes a great deal of difference to our appetites and pleasures.

The sense of smell is closely linked to all other senses of the body. It is furthermore strongly ingrained in our memories. Once a person has smelled a rose or turned beef and cabbage, the odor thereafter means something very definite in his life.

It is now well established that in some people the sense of smell is very deficient. These are people who lack the ability to smell certain odors although they can smell others.

This is much the same as the type of deafness in which people can hear only sounds within a certain range.

It is also well established that it is possible for the sense to become so fatigued by the repeated smelling of strong odors that it is impossible to smell them further.

For example, if you smell a certain kind of perfume over and over for a sufficiently long time, you will get to the point where you will not smell it at all, but a different odor will be smelled immediately.

It is for this very reason that women beginning with small amounts of perfume ultimately reach an excess of the same perfume because their nostrils have become so accustomed to it that they fail to appreciate small amounts of it.

Strangely it has been found that certain odors antagonize each other so that when both are present at once neither is smelled. They seem to neutralize each other in some way.

For example, nozzles may be put into each of the nostrils and a different odor blown into the nose from each nozzle. Sometimes one is smelled after the other, sometimes one is smelled and sometimes neither.

It has been found that the odors of rubber and benzoin are neutralizing, also isoform and balsam of Peru, and cedarwood and cedar.

To some people the sense of smell is so faint that they are sensitive to exceedingly small amounts of certain odors. They may detect camphor in the dilution of 1:400,000; musk in a concentration of 1:300,000,000, and vanilla in a concentration of 1:10,000,000.

Apparently the strongest odor is that of mercaptan, which can be detected when 1:23,000,000th of a milligram is present in a quart of water.

This Book Tells Why Violence Goes with Strikes
Rock Surveys Tragic Field of Industrial Conflict

BY BRUCE CATTON

If you have been dismayed and bewildered by the violence of recent strikes in Toledo, Minneapolis, San Francisco and elsewhere, you might find Louis Adamic's book "Dynamic" very much worth reading.

This book, originally issued in 1930 and now brought up to date with a survey of developments under the New Deal, is entitled "The Story of Clash Violence in America." It is an enlightening and disturbing book.

Mr. Adamic traces the whole conflict between worker and employer in America from its origin more than a century ago and shows how it began when industrialism began and it grew more intense and bitter as industrialism developed; before long it had blossomed out in such tragic forms as the Molly Maguires in Pennsylvania and the Haymarket and Pullman riots in Chicago, followed by the Homestead strike, the Idaho and Colorado mine wars, the McNamara bombing in Los Angeles and the great steel strike of 1919.

But this book is not a mere catalog of riots. Mr. Adamic not only tells how these things happened, he tells why they happened as well. He shows why certain American workers came to feel that the use of dynamic was their only possible answer to a power that could be fought in no other way, and why certain labor unions work with and through racketeers.

He gives in short, an excellent sur-

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Teaching Your Child to Use His Hands

Benefits Him in Later Life
Manual training means hand training of any sort. We usually apply it to carpenter work but as a matter of fact any practice that leads to control of hand and fingers is manual training.

The Japanese are lever at foot training to the extent even of "ice-writing." Toes are not as facile as fingers but they can be trained to an astonishing degree.

If we never had it use our hands not even to raise a spoon to our mouth, after a certain number of centuries hands would become like a modern foot—useless and clumsy as far as control goes.

The pianist practices his scales and stretches difficult chords, not so much to perfect memory, or to loosen tight muscles, as to maintain coordination or control between quick mind and dexterous hand—that delicate reaction that the best soon lose without practice.

Hands Get Lazy
Hands get very lazy if their owners don't get after them. But it is the most important to learn to use hands early in life.

A woman who has never learned to hold a needle and a hem at the same time in childhood will likely find that during very difficult in maturity. Even cooking requires thought and handling at the same time. Otherwise it becomes an awkward and burdensome task. Ask kind of housework is the same.

It happens that children are not allowed to drive cars, and goodness help us if they were! But in out-of-the-way places where children learn to drive cars "unofficially" they become drivers of marked dexterity. The quick hand and the equally quick thought, ability to grasp situations and react instantly, are things that all drivers do not possess.

Work at Home Is Best

Eggs who must do carpenter jobs around the house learn to use tools. They learn in school, too, but they are permitted to think out their own repair problems, and to use the plane, square, saw and hammer, develop a hand technique that lasts throughout life.

One man said recently: "Too few expert engineers can take a hammer and drive a nail straight. They have knowledge, but they couldn't show a man how to do anything; so he recommended that scientific courses teach more hand and finger work along with their drafting, algebra and so on. And training is an asset in any technical line."

Parents are wise who allow their children to try things. Most of them love it. Later, when the magic urge is gone, you couldn't get them back to it with wild horses. I imagine the chatty and the old red rove turned out as many good carpenters in the days gone by, as all the manual training courses of the present. And the best housekeepers are those who learned while young to handle needles, irons and spoons.

One of the whole tragic field. He sees how change that labor relations will grow more peaceful in the near future and he has seen use for the Roosevelt labor program; but if his work is depressing, it is extremely educational.

THE CARNIVAL

THE carnival of San Remo is swinging down the street. The villagers are dancing by the nights are long and sweet. The fiddling men have special tunes, the lanterns light the square. And it's been half a dozen years since you and I were there!

THE harbor lights go walking by to meet the coming ships. The peasant lads have eager eyes, their sisters eager lips. The houses tumble down the street, the children never cry. Redheads offer colored strings to people passing by.

THE adder asks a coin each time he plays upon his fiddle. The fiddler stretches greedy hands each time he tells a riddle. Romance is sweet as April rain, and sweet as milk and honey. We can't go back to San Remo—we haven't any money!

CHAPTER VIII

BOOTS faced Mrs. Fernell bravely. She was smiling but it was a desperate little smile. "I don't know what you mean."

"Yes, I think you do, Barbara dear." Boots had never liked Mrs. Fernell. She was what Isabel, with justice, called "poison sweet."

"It has been brought to my attention," Mrs. Fernell went on swiftly and smoothly, as though she had rehearsed it all before a mirror, "that some of the juniors have been contemplating—or shall I say really entering into drinking parties."

At Boots' quick frown and gesture of denial she went on blandly.

"The Yacht Club dance is an example. A certain young man—no names are to be brought into this, mind—had too much to drink. A young woman went sailing with him. He fell overboard. The young woman left her party—was seen to arrive home later with a strange escort. All very reprehensible."

"If you mean me, Mrs. Fernell," Boots said with a sort of frozen childish hauteur, "I did dance with Hardy Whitmore. I did go out on the veranda with him. But I didn't know he was drunk. I didn't go sailing with him. The same thing might have happened to anyone else there."

"Ah, but my dear child, it didn't. There's the thing," said the older woman in a sort of melancholy triumph.

Boots stood up suddenly, things at this stage. Her color had ebbed now and her eyes were enormous in a white face.

"What you mean, Mrs. Fernell, is that you want me to hand in my resignation to the Juniors?"

"I didn't say that." Now it was Boots who was the more composed of the two.

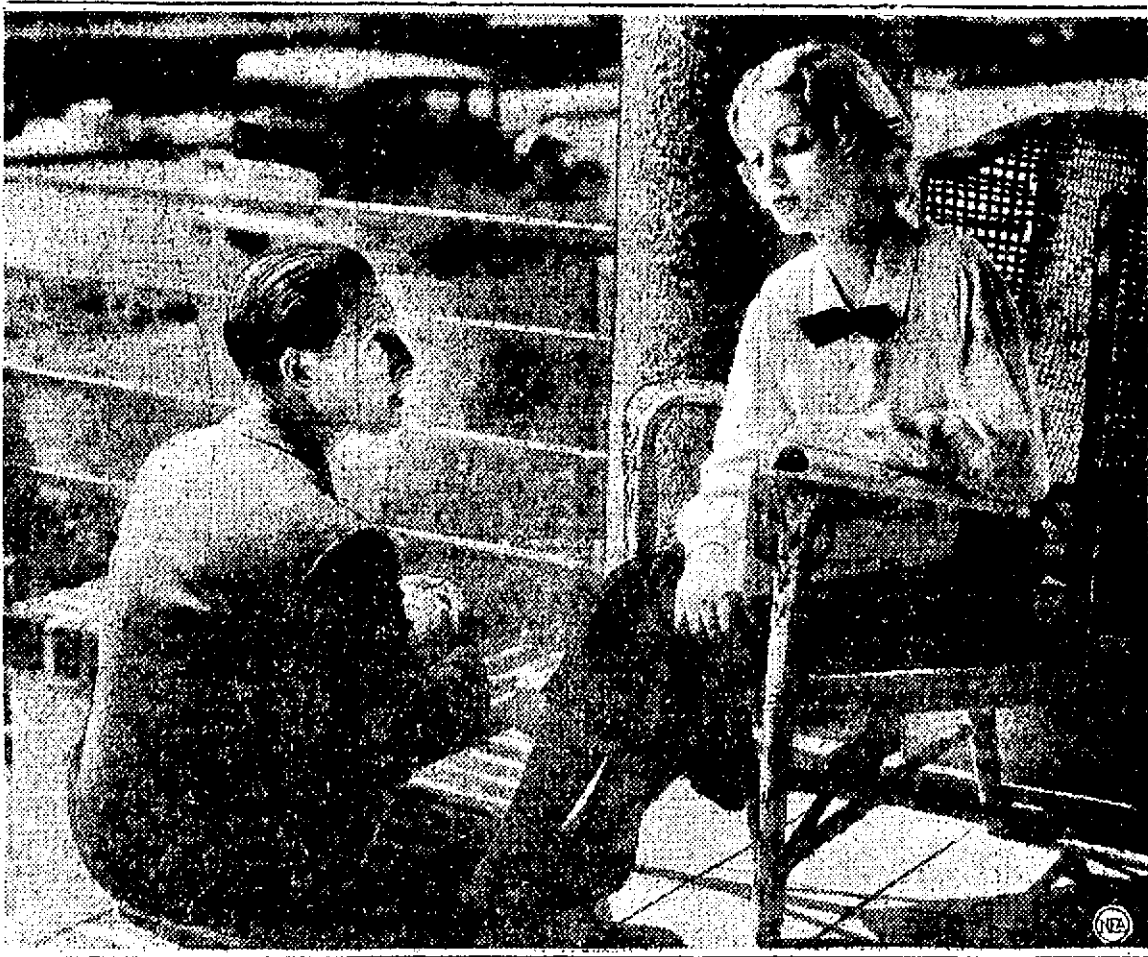

"No, but that is what you wanted to see me about, isn't it?"

"I've known your mother for years," Mrs. Fernell began quickly and colorfully. "It's all very painful to me, but there are certain things Boots did not really hear."

"Mrs. Fernell works in the library," Boots was thinking bitterly. "She doesn't dare to offend Sylvia. Isabel was right. I was in bad. Oh, how unfair... how bitterly unfair."

As she walked home through the sunny streets her head was swimming in a kind of hot vapor. Oh, she could fight the whole thing, of course. Hardy would be decent—let what had happened—she had been completely innocent in the sorry episode. But she wouldn't fight. Let them talk about her as they would. She hated the whole town, everybody in it. The Juniors, indeed!

There was just one small drop of comfort in the whole terrible affair—her mother was going away. She was leaving on the afternoon train for Boston, to visit Aunt "Gosh, but I'm sorry about the other night," Hardy said.

Needa. Mother would be spared the nods and smiles of pretended sympathy.

"It will have blown over by the time she gets back," Boots thought. Poor Mother! She was so proud and sensitive. The whole thing would be a nightmare to her. And Boots could not bear the thought of the inevitable, interminable conversations. "My dear, I think it's a shame. You're perfectly right. I wouldn't stand it for a minute."

Well, the very instant Mother came back from Aunt Needa's Boots would go to the city, would find a place for herself. She would show them all. Meantime, there was the town to face, with head high.

WHAT did Alice Fernell want, dear? Mrs. Raeburn was packing a shabby black bag. "I have to go off in all this heat," she rambled on, not waiting for a reply. "But Needa sent me the ticket. She said she wouldn't take us for an answer. Daddy's so worried about the business, too—it just doesn't seem the time. But he says I need the change. Did you see my dotted Swiss, dear? I laid it on a chair half a minute ago and now it seems to have disappeared. I thought I'd wear my gray on the train. It doesn't show the soil."

And so on and so on. Boots was spared the necessity of answering the questioning about Mrs. Fernell.

"You'll get along all right, child! Linda said she'd come in and do the heavy cleaning. I declare, I think I should have asked Florida Fleming to stay with you. She'd have been glad to. The meals at the inn are nothing wonderful and she could have the guest room. It's the coolest one in the house."

Boots shuddered inwardly at the thought of entertaining the voluble Miss Florida at this difficult time.

"I'm glad you didn't. Honestly, I'll manage beautifully."

"Oh, I know you will. Have plenty of green vegetables. Daddy oughtn't to eat much red meat this weather. His blood pressure... the porch, apparently deep in the Mrs. Raeburn fluttered about, folding, packing. "And don't stay too much in the sun, dear. I think you girls spend too much time on the beach. I was reading the other day some place that the sun really harms after a certain point..."

The fair brow was creased in worried lines.

"Don't worry, darling. Everything will be all right. I'll stay away from the beach if you want me to," said Boots apathetically.

"Why, baby, I wouldn't think of it! Of course you must have a good time. I only wish you could get away to the mountains this year. The change would do you good. You've been looking—don't know—kind of washed out," said the older woman.

At long last Boots waved goodbye to her as the eastbound train moved out. She turned back to the battered sedan. The thoughts which all afternoon she had been keeping at bay swamped about her now like so many birds of ill omen.

The day grew hotter, grew breathless. Curtains hung limp in the lifeless air, lawn sprays played everywhere, shades were drawn against the pitiless, battering sunlight. In the silence of the darkened house the phone rang shrilly. Boots, emerging from the shower with yellow head still damp, her thin dressing gown clutched around her, went to answer it.

"Yes. Yes. What?" Her face altered imperceptibly, as did her voice. "Hardy? Why, yes, yes, guess so. No—not right away. Half an hour."

She flew to the closet, snatched a fresh print from its hanger, began hurriedly to dress. It seemed to her that her fingers were all thumbs today. Her hair, usually so tractable, refused at first to assume its usual gentle waves. Then she broke a fingernail and jagged a stocking, causing her to abandon the only decent pair she owned.

WHEN Hardy's long, low, sleek black car drove up she was on

Miracle
A thousand roadways lead to Rome.
But Love has only one.
The little trail that hurries home
Beneath the setting sun.
A thousand stars light up the skies.
Love has a single flame;
The glow that kindles in the eyes.
At mention of a name.
A thousand flowers fill the earth.
Love has one petal scent;
The tiny rose whose magic birth
Gives man God's sacrament.

Adm'l Byrd Once Very Near Death

Had Prepared Self for End When Tractor Party Failed

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica—(AP)—(Via Mackay Radio)—A message from Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd's advance base revealed Thursday that the noted explorer at one time resigned himself to death as the result of illness suffered during the latter weeks of his lonely vigil.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, leader of the tractor expedition which now is at the advance base, reported in a radio message that Admiral Byrd's notes giving directions for the relief party which he feared would arrive to late.

Dr. Poulter reported that Admiral Byrd was stricken about the first of June and became so ill that he all but resigned himself to death. His weakness was so great that after he finished his daily observations he had no strength for anything else and prepared for the end.

During this period, Dr. Poulter said, the admiral required hours to complete the simplest tasks of his routine and particularly found it hard to crank the generator for the semi-weekly radio schedules with Little America.

By tinkering with the stove and improving the ventilation he reduced the fumes and kept the fire out as much as he could.

After some three weeks he began to regain his strength only to suffer a setback that rendered his condition as bad as at first.

Three heavily armed men entered the cabin after Clark had driven into town. Planton was asleep and was not molested, but the bandits ordered that Rogers get into their car. They drove toward Cassville, meeting Clark and Rogers, who were returning to the cabin.

The bandits forced Clark and Rogers into their car also, and then drove a mile south where they stopped and searched their prisoners. They obtained $550 from Clark and $37 from Rogers, overvaluing $300 additional which he carried.

Four other crimes besides murder are punishable with death in some states. They are arson, rape, first-degree burglary and perjury in a capital case.

By the Associated Press
Farmers of Missouri and Illinois enjoyed rain Thursday. The precipitation almost reached cloudburst proportions in several localities and fell down on burned fields in time to save some of the corn crop, push later crops on and revive pastures.

A downpour of 5.42 inches was reported at Mexico, Mo., the heaviest since 1928. Union City had 4.20 inches and 10 out of the 25 Missouri stations had more than an inch.

A violent storm in Tuscola, Ill., filled dry stream beds, stalled highway traffic and soaked fields in 5.63 inches of rain. St. Louis had the heaviest rain in 13 months.

Farmers of northern and eastern Iowa saw assurance of an average crop of corn following intermittent showers of the last four days. The heavy precipitation had dented the drought in parts of northern Kansas, had brightened Michigan harvest prospects and had rescued farmers from total loss in Southern Minnesota.

Meanwhile relief authorities in Washington added 23 additional counties to their map of emergency areas.

With the drought officially described as "the worst on record" the total of sun-drenched counties mounted to 1,124. It was announced that the government, which planned originally to buy only about 2,000,000 head of cattle to relieve the feed shortage on western plains, probably would buy up to 15,000,000 animals.

Generally the drought area was cooler with temperatures in the 80s, but the mercury climbed up to 101 at Newkirk, Neb., and climbed to 100 at Omaha.

Annual flow of the Mississippi river carried to the sea about a half billion tons of solid matter.

Grilled in Huey's Income Tax Case

A power in finance and politics five years ago who faded away to an Arizona sheep ranch, Mike Moss is shown back in New Orleans for a grand jury quiz said to involve income tax charges against Senator Huey Long and his aides. Moss, striking in two-gallon hat and bandanna, cigar at jaunty angle, was guarded closely by U. S. agents.

Hempstead Added to Drouth Area

Secondary Emergency Declared in Southwestern Arkansas

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Farm Administration Friday added five Arkansas counties to the secondary drought list: Hempstead, LaFayette, Little River, Miller and Pike.

The Public Works Administration authorized increases for previous allotments aggregating $129,000, including raising from $42,000 to $43,000 a loan and grant for Mena, Ark., for street improvements.

over to Sheriff Paul Garrison this morning a note she received through the mails yesterday. Typed on cheap paper and enclosed in a plain envelope, it said:

"Get $25,000 at once or you will never see your husband alive again. Instructions will follow."

The letter bore no signature. It had been postmarked at Goldsboro on August 14 at 8:30 p.m. That is about the hour that letters taken from city boxes here in the last collection of the evening are postmarked.

Mr. Askew and his wife are persons of little wealth, although Mrs. Askew owns some property of small value in the western part of the state.

Sheriff Garrison informed the Department of Justice of Mr. Askew's absence and the note, but said that so far as he knew no federal agents had been sent here.

Sheriff Garrison said that he did not believe anyone familiar with Mrs. Askew's means would expect her to raise $25,000.

Germany Asks No Quarter—Hitler

Wants Merely to Be Left Alone, He Tells Hamburg Shipbuilders

HAMBURG, Germany—(AP)—A united Germany asks no favors of a hostile world but has the right to expect to be allowed to go her own way in peace, Chancellor Hitler told shipyard workers in an unscheduled address Friday.

On a tour of the city prior to a political speech here Friday night the chancellor talked briefly about the problems of restoring Germany's industrial prosperity.

"I am not here to make promises based on theory," he said "What we need now is results."

The purpose of this Sunday's plebiscite is to consolidate the German people and show the world that Germany is united, he added.

To Cut Surpluses on Three Products

Peach, Butter and Cotton Program for Relief Administration

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Plans to reduce surpluses in three farm products and supply work for 60,000 workers on the relief rolls were announced Friday by Federal relief organizations. The California organization has been authorized to contract for 10,000 tons of surplus peaches; bids have been asked for one million pounds of butter for distribution; and a mattress-manufacture program aims at the removal of a quarter-million bales of cotton from the market.

TO MY FRIENDS

In Hope and Hempstead County

By reason of your loyalty and untiring efforts in my behalf, in my race for Congress, I carried my home county by a majority of votes greater than my opponents received in their respective counties, for which I am deeply grateful to you.

W. S. Atkins

I take this means to express my appreciation and thanks to my many friends for the vote you gave me and for all the kindness show me in my race for Representative.

I live at 517 South Pine Street and maintain an office in the First National Bank building. I want you to let me know when I can be of service to you.

I will thank you for your vote and support in the Primary of August 28th.

Willie Harris

Candidate for Representative.

BEAUTY TREATMENT FOR MADEMOISELLES DIONNE

The daily bath is a beauty necessity for every well-behaved quintuplet, even if, like Yvonne here, the awakening is resented. Yvonne, heaviest and strongest of the babies, even makes a show of resistance with her tiny hands as Nurse Louise De Kirilne prepares her for her "oil sponge."

"IS THAT NICE, INTRUDING ON A LADY'S BATH?"

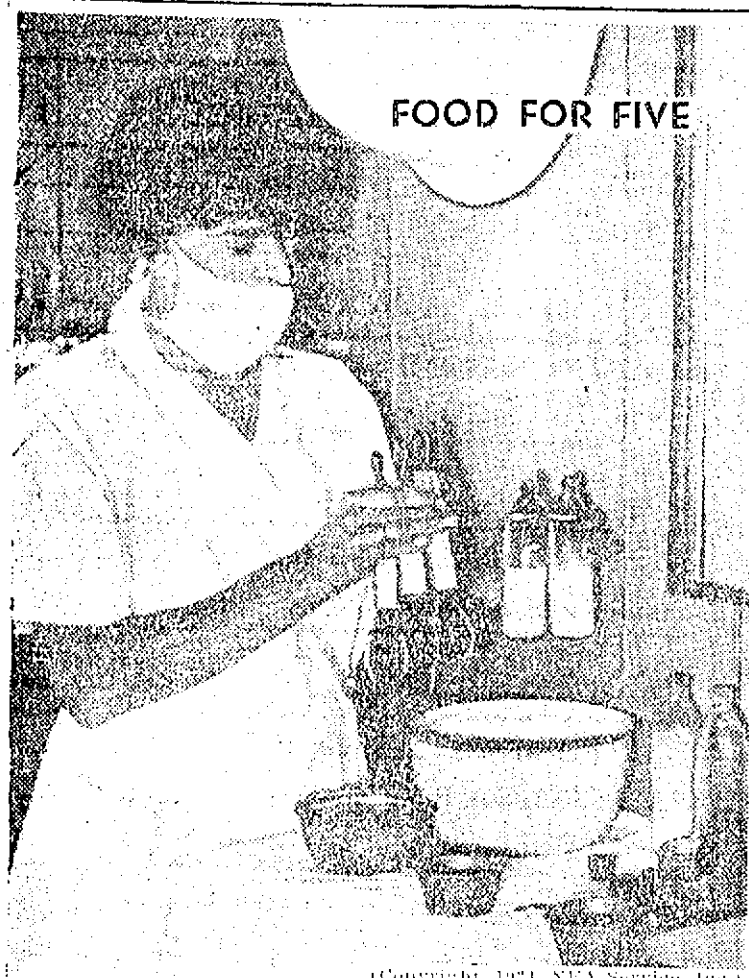

Annette appears just a bit resentful at the intrusion of a camera into the privacy of her bath, while Nurse De Kirilne with deft and practised touch applies the soothing oil which is used on skin that is too delicate for soap and water. The nurse's mask protects against possible infection.

ALL SLICKED UP, AND NO PLACE TO GO BUT BED

The bath completed, Miss Yvonne is ready to go—but there is nowhere else to go but back into the incubator. Nurse De Kirilne gently deposits her on the snowy white towel to be dressed in her "gertrude," a soft woolen garment with an attached hood, which the quintuplets all wear.

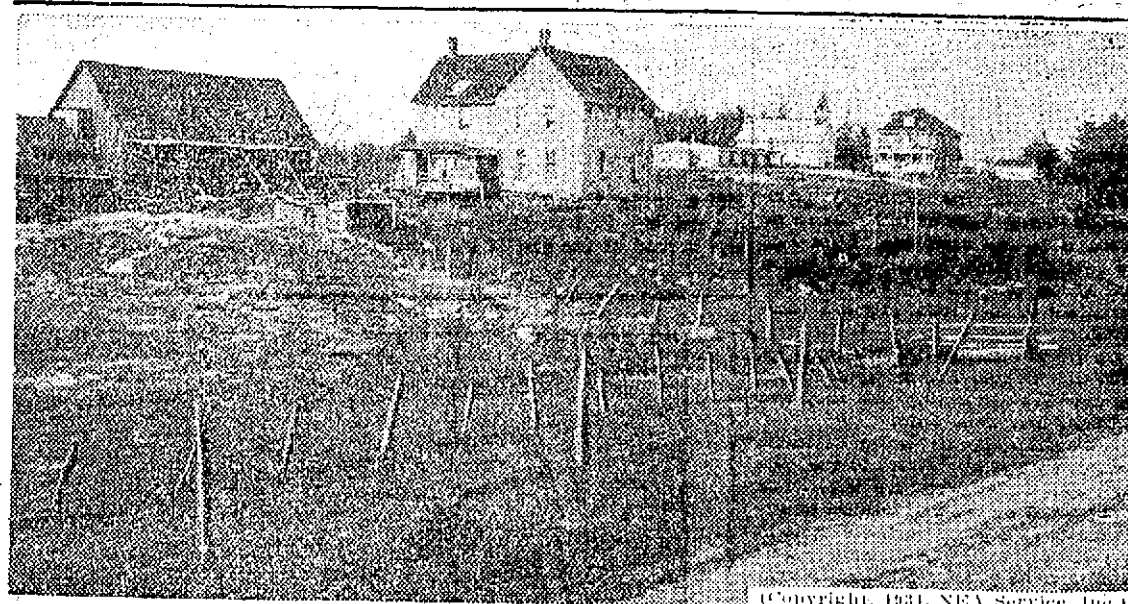

FOOD FOR FIVE

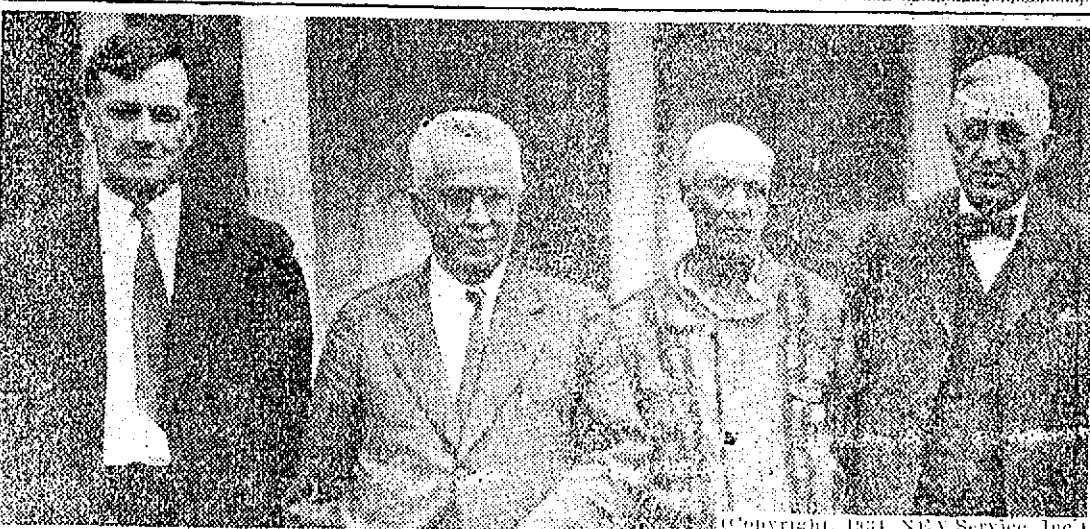

It's lunch time (every three hours) at the Dionnes' house, and here is Nurse De Kirilne with the ration of shipped-in mothers' milk for a single feeding. The two strongest babies are being tried out with regular nursing bottles, but the other three still need their magnified "eye-droppers" which enable the nurse to force the feeding somewhat if the baby isn't hungry.

CORBEIL

Corbeil, Ontario, nearest town to the Dionne farm, and so small it hasn't even a "Main Street." The small white church with the dark cupola just to the right of the center is that of the Rev. Daniel Routhier, parish priest and advisor to the Dionnes. The stony ground in the farmyard in the foreground gives a clue to the difficulties that go with farming in this district, where Dionne has been able to make only a bare living. It is on the edge of heavily-wooded country, and is not highly productive land.

FOUR FATHERS

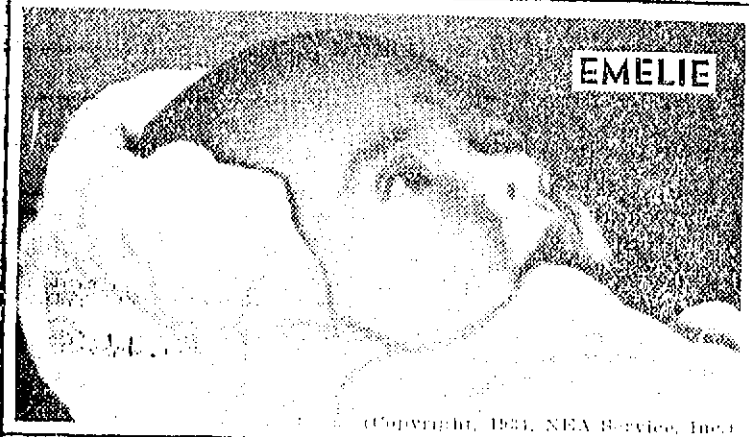

Legally, the Dionne quintuplets now have four fathers, appointed as their guardians by the Ontario government. Left to right, they are Kenneth Morrison, Callander merchant and old friend of the Dionne family; Dr. A. R. Dufour, the physician who took charge of the multiple birth; Oliver Dionne, the quintuplets' grandfather; and W. H. Alderson, of the Canadian Red Cross. The swarm of promoters which immediately surrounded Dionne was so great that it was felt he would be unable to handle them without the possibility of some imposition that would handicap the future of the quintuplets.

MILK—AND A BROTHER

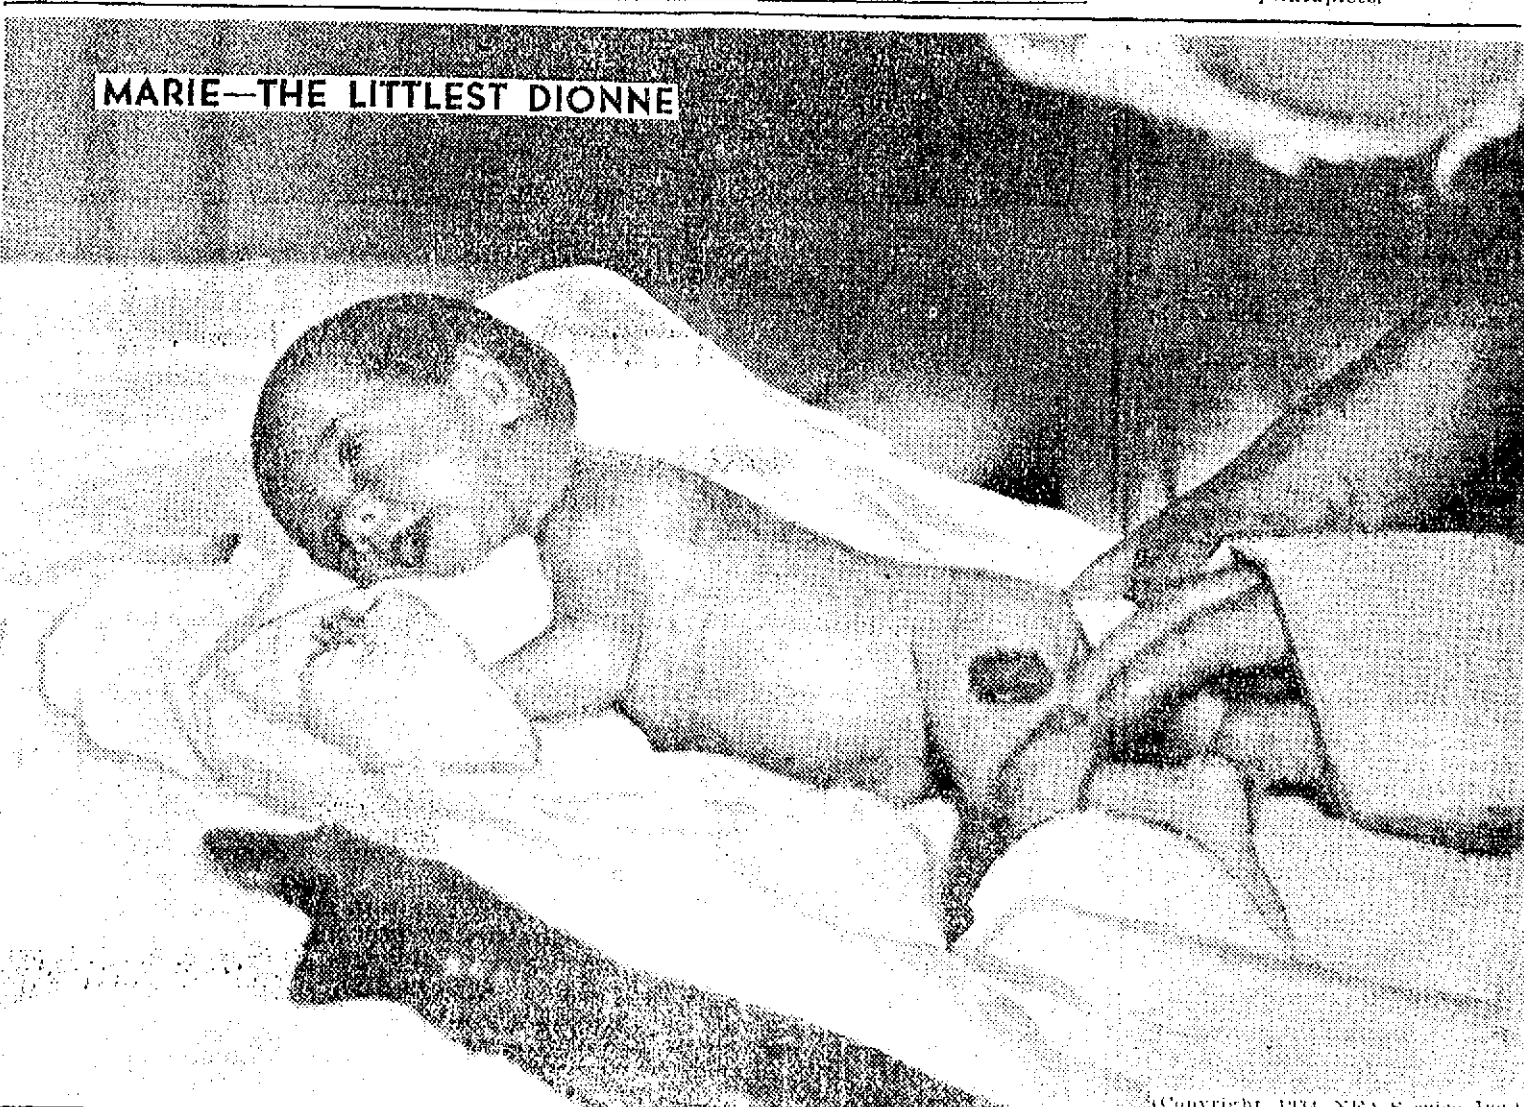

Daniel Dionne only half understands why he had to go and live with neighbors when five little sisters descended on him at once. He's only 2, and one of five other children of the Dionnes. The case beside him encloses one of the containers which have brought daily supplies of mothers' milk by train to the Dionne quintuplets from Chicago, Toronto and Montreal.

EMELIE

Emelie, second smallest of the Dionne quintuplets, smiled her interest in the proceedings as she was lifted out of her incubator for this picture.

MARIE—THE LITTLEST DIONNE

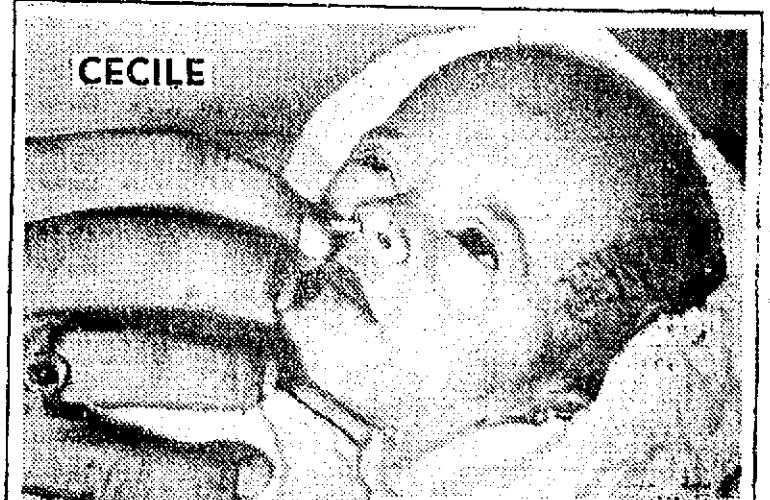

Marie, youngest of the Dionne quintuplets, smiled gladly to show that she was not in the least concerned by the small discoloration on her left leg which has caused some concern among attending physicians. It has been diagnosed as a naevus tumor, probably not malignant, which should yield readily to treatment a little later when Marie is stronger and better able to undergo it. Marie weighed 3 pounds, 10 1/2 ounces when this picture was made, though she was 2 months old.

ANNETTE

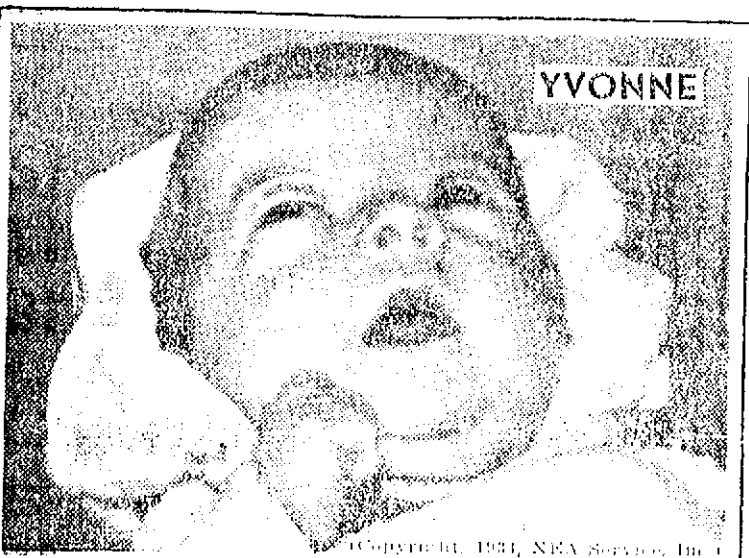

Annette studies intently and with curious interest the face of the nurse who is lifting her up for this portrait. Note her fine head of hair.

CECILE

Cecile, most active of the Dionne babies, seems to take it all pretty good-naturedly as the nurse protects her nose against cold germs.

YVONNE

Yvonne, huskiest and strongest of the babies, grunted a bit when she inserted eagerly in her mouth a rubber-tipped finger, but she was quiet today.

How Niagara Looks After Biting Its Lip Again

The famed Canadian Horseshoe falls of Niagara presented a new face to sightseers after hundreds of tons of rock pitched with a deafening roar from the lip of the crest to the gorge 150 feet below. At the point shown in the circle, the water is plunging over the brink in the new curvature formed by the rock collapse, this new recession being about 100 feet deep and 150 to 200 yards long. The section that fell extended beyond the first notch of the horseshoe from the Canadian side and was close to Goat Island.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson
Text: Amos 6:1-7, 11-14
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for August 19.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

Beneath the sham and injustice of life, Amos saw also the evil of self-indulgence. In the seemingly prosperous society that he observed as he came from his fields and farm life, he saw not only the depth of social corruption, but he saw also the debasement of individual life and character.

He perceived that the character of men and women was being corrupted by the ease and luxury that they had brought into their lives.

He challenged the worth of much that every age has tended to call culture and refinement. He questioned what could be the real culture or refinement of a people who cared nothing for the affliction of their fellow men, and he predicted the overthrow of those who had not established their lives in strength and right and truth.

He saw the great houses smitten with breaches and the little houses with clefts. He saw ruin and depression setting upon the nation that had been building a luxurious superstructure and disregarding the foundations of simple verity and right.

He warned the people against their false security, and he spoke of a preparation of a different sort, that was essential to a nation and people.

He did not tell the rich to secure their ill-gotten gains, and the luxurious and cultured to defend their easy ways, by building up great armies to provide even heavier burdens for the tax-ridden masses. He told them that the deepest law and way of security in the life of any people was to get back to sound principles, to build individual character and social life upon integrity and fairness, man with man.

One can realize that Amos was not a popular prophet. What scorn the sophisticated must have had for his rough dress and his simple ways; What scorn the city has always had for the rustic and the farmer, in spite of the fact that he feeds them all!

Yet it is the man from the wilderness and the country who has come again and again to warn of dangers and to save society, when its own ways and practices have brought upon it dire peril.

Where is the Amos of today? Possibly he is found in our midst, if we would but give heed to him and listen to his counsels.

We may be sure that he is no more attractive and popular than in this ancient time. We may be sure that he has no honey words, but we may be sure, also, that unless we heed his warning the forces of ease and evil that have brought disaster in the past will continue their story of disaster until we establish things aright.

It is interesting to observe that all through the period of our recent prosperity, and the later depression, there have been some men here in America who have rightly appraised the facts and who have given counsel, little as their fellow men were willing to heed.

What tragedy and sadness in the lives of millions of our people might have been spared, if in our days of assumed prosperity we had been building truly and wisely and conserving the wealth of a vast country for the welfare of the whole of its people!

Delicatable Cake Spread With Seven Minute Frosting Ideal for Dessert

By MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

I suppose every family has one dessert that is greeted with shouts of glee by every member. In my own home circle that supreme eminence is occupied by chocolate cake. Whenever the spirits of anybody in the little group begin to droop—when, for instance, something's gone wrong at the office and father is getting that "this world is a pretty bad place after all" attitude, I find the best tonic is a good big dose of his favorite dessert served at the end of his favorite meal, is accompanied by plenty of soothing talk about things he's interested in.

Our favorite chocolate cake is a devil's food, and instead of an icing, we prefer frosting. The secret of making a good light cake as all cooks know, is to sift the flour enough and to beat the ingredients until they attain a state of real fluffiness. Also, unless you are an old hand at cakes, better follow directions explicitly. It is all very well for the cook who has done the same trick hundreds of times to go by guess, but the amateur needs rules.

Cream Butter Thoroughly
For my family's favorite Devil's Food (why, I wonder was such a delectable cake ever given such a name?) you need: 1 teaspoon soda; 1/2 cup butter or other shortening; 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, firmly packed; 2 eggs or 3 egg yolks, unbeaten; 3 squares unsweetened chocolate melted; 1 cup of milk; 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 cups sifted cake flour.

Sift flour once, measure, add soda, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after every addition together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light. Add egg yolks, then flour alternately with milk. Beat after every addition until smooth. Add vanilla and fold in egg whites. Bake in two greased 9-inch pans in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes.

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Shredded pineapple, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, toast, milk, coffee.
Luncheon: Sweetbread and celery salad, ice-box rolls, cherry preserves, Irish moss pudding with blackberries, milk, tea.
Dinner: Cold boiled tongue, eggplant baked on casserole, stuffed beet salad, chocolate Devil's Food cake, milk, coffee.

until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two deep greased 9-inch layer pans or three greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) twenty-five minutes. Spread Seven Minute Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. Double the recipe if you would like to make three ten-inch layers.

Seven Minute Frosting
For the Seven Minute frosting, you need 2 egg whites, unbeaten; 1 1/2 cups sugar; 5 tablespoons water; 1 1/2 teaspoons light corn syrup; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine egg whites, sugar, water and corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater, and cook 7 minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from boiling water. Add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. This makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

The same frosting is delicious on a white layer cake that is also baked with a good deal of interest in my family. For this is required: 2 cups sifted cake flour; 2 teaspoons baking powder; 1 teaspoon salt; 2-3 cup butter or other shortening; 1 cup sugar; 3 egg yolks, well-beaten; 1-3 cup milk; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Sift flour together once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift at the Blake's Last Night!

Mrs.: Well, after all, you haven't said a single thing against electric refrigeration!

Mr.: I haven't said anything against it. I haven't said anything against caviar every night for dinner—if we could afford it! And anyway, with ice you never have to worry about not having plenty when company comes.

Mrs.: Well, you can make your own ice. And with one of those great big new refrigerators you can have plenty.

Mr.: Great big is right! Great big electric bills and great big installment charges. And "make your own," indeed! You can make your own shoes too. But isn't it always cheaper to buy everything where they make it in quantity and sell it in volume—from ice to flippers? You're money ahead every time!

Mrs.: You're a nasty man, but you win. For once you're right!

But ICE wins on MERIT as well as PRICE

Air-tight, mechanically cooled cabinets provide a dangerous, dry atmosphere. Moisture is essential to health. With the correct degree of moisture (as found only in modern ice refrigeration) foods do not dry out or become bad-tasting. Neither do they lose their own natural juices and delicious flavors so essential to health and the appetite.
